

5th Annual International Conference on Transgenerational Trauma:
Communal Wounds and Victim Identities

October 26-29, 2016 ~ Amman, Jordan

As communal trauma mounts across the Middle East and world, a concerted initiative to understand, heal, and prevent its transfer into future generations

JOIN US for a 4 -Day Program of:

- ◆ Sharing Skills - Learning and adapting skills for healing trauma at the individual and communal level
- ◆ A Search For New Models & Methodologies - Developing new models and methods at the societal level for healing and preventing communal trauma and its transfer into future generations.
- ◆ A Focused Dialogue & Deliberation - Defining and addressing the dynamics of inherited, unresolved communal trauma from one generation to the next, including historical understandings, the development and perpetuation of communal victim identities, exclusive cultural membership and rites of belonging, war and violence, epigenetics, and implications for present and future relations between communities.

Transgenerational Trauma is an underlying, potent fuel for the eruption of violence in the past, present and future. Understanding it's dynamics and implications, and developing effective treatment, are essential to healing and reconciliation within and between communities, and establishing compassionate relationships
